Proverbs 29:18 says: where there is no vision the people perish or cast off restraint. This is a people that are wandering, that have no order, they are not content, and there is no rest in them, because they have no real direction.

Helen Keller was without restraint, hope, or direction. She spent her life bumping into obstacles and confused about what was next.

Family Vision

Quick tips to develop a family vision:

Remember that we are created in God's image and God created desires.

There is no desire that you can experience that the real root is not God given, we just often pollute it.

God created the desire for security

God created the desire for love

God created the desire for intimacy

God created the desire for REST

Find the root of the God given desires in your heart. Are they not there to direct you where He is leading you? Is that not him speaking to you?

Try this exercise, but do not think about money.

- Make a list of 10 things that will drive you and get you out of bed in the morning, excited to face the day.
- Make a list of 10 things you want said at your funeral about who you were and what you did.
- Make a list of 10 things you dream of often

Often the 3 most common denominators between the 3 categories is the basis or direction of your vision. Now just pray about how it applies to your life and supports your family's needs and direction.

Remember, your vision should be fun or exciting to you if you have a drive for it. God did not call you to serve Him out of duty, but passion.

Look close, God given visions do not compete. You will find that your vision and your spouse vision will actually complement and support each other.

Have your whole family look to find the common elements of each of their visions and get on one page for a family or home vision.

You can all still have your own personal visions as we all have personal relationships with Christ.

Note: Make sure your hobbies have a positive benefit

It is important that nothing goes into your family vision that is not 100% agreed on by each family member if they can talk and understand yet. Even young children have valuable input. I am careful not to put something in our family vision if our kids do not agree completely. If our kids agree and support our family vision, they often choose to live by it with self-discipline.

Remember your family vision should be a unified voice.

Every home divided against itself cannot stand.
